ACCURATE MEASUREMENTS

The Priscilla Cook Book is an authority based on actual tests, for such accurate culinary information as the homemaker of today requires, and insists upon:

Accurate measurements.
The temperature at which the dish should be cooked.
The length of the cooking period.

ADVANTAGES OF ACCURACY

Money Saving.— "Bad Luck" caused more waste in the old-fashioned kitchen than any other one cause. Certainty in place of guessing eliminates failures.

Time Saving.— If we know just how long a dish should be cooked, and at just what temperature the oven should be held, the time we used to spend hovering near the stove to "see how it is coming along" is saved for something more profitable.

Mental Relief.— A feeling of confidence takes considerable strain from a busy woman's mind.

EQUIPMENT

To secure accuracy, every kitchen should contain the following equipment:

Measuring spoons.— Convenien aluminum spoons plainly marked with the quantities they hold may be bought anywhere for about ten cents.

Measuring cups.— Two of these are sufficient. Both may be of glass or of aluminum, but we find an aluminum cup for dry ingredients and a glass one for liquids most convenient. Each is plainly marked with thirds and quarter cups.

A small spatula for leveling.— The back of a knife will do equally well, but the spatula has so many other uses that its purchase is not an extravagance.
All measurements in this book are level. Tablespoon, teaspoon, etc., mean standard measuring spoons level full. Tableware will not do, for almost every different make and pattern holds a different quantity.

Another thing the accurate cook must not do is to shake down dry ingredients in the cup while they are being measured. Put the materials into the cup lightly with a spoon until it is heaped, then level the cup with a spatula.

Besides measuring ingredients with exactness, it is necessary to follow carefully the directions for combining. Accurate measurement lays the foundation for success in cookery, but the method used in putting them together is also important in the final result.

TIME AND TEMPERATURE

The time in cooking and the temperature given in each recipe is that actually used when the recipe was tested at the Priscilla Proving Plant. In using utensils of varying dimensions slight changes in the cooking period may be found necessary. For instance, cake batter baked in a deep narrow pan requires a longer time to cook thoroughly than an equal amount of the same batter spread out in a broad, shallow pan.

For accuracy in baking an automatic oven-heat control is the ideal. Unless the oven is equipped with such a device the only way to determine the temperature with any degree of accuracy is by the use of an oven thermometer. The type of indicator which is built into the oven door of many ranges cannot be depended upon absolutely. With continued use it becomes less and less accurate.

SERVINGS

The number of servings which each recipe will make is also a variable quantity, depending on the place of the dish in the menu, the accompanying dishes, and the food habits of the family.
À la, au, aux—All three forms mean just the same thing. Your French grammar explains the choice of each for use. Example: Rice à la Priscilla Proving Plant, means simply rice as it is served there.

Aspic—Savory jelly made with stock.

Au gratin—With browned crumbs. Example: Potato au gratin.

Au naturel—In its original state.

Béchamel—A sauce made with stock and milk or cream.

Bisque—A term applied both to soup and to ice cream. Applied to soup with a cream stock and to ice cream to which is added finely chopped nuts.

Blanch—To scald, to whiten. The blanching process usually depends on a quick change in temperature from boiling to chilling. Almonds, for instance.

Bombe glacée—Molded ice cream and ice, or two kinds of ice cream, the outside of one kind and the inside of another kind.

Braise—To stew in a covered pan. Ex.: Braised beef is simply beef cooked slowly in a covered utensil.

Café au lait—Coffee with hot milk.

Café noir—Black coffee; i.e., coffee served without milk or cream.

Canapé—Pieces of toast or bread spread with some appetizing mixture. Served as a first course at a formal lunch or dinner.

Cannelon—A roll, either of veal or beef, or else of baked puff paste.

Caviare—Salted roe from a large fish like a sturgeon.

Charlotte—A pudding. It is made of strips of bread or cake, covered with fruit or gelatine.

Compote—Fruit stewed in syrup. Peach compote.

Consommé—Very rich stock.

Créole, à la—Literally it means served as the Creoles do. Actually it means cooked with tomatoes.

Croustade—A crisp patty to hold a filling. It may be of bread or rice.

Cutlets—Steaks of veal, lamb, mutton, or pork. Breaded cutlets are these same steaks rolled first in egg and then in cracker crumbs before they are fried.

Demi-tasse—A term applied both to a half size cup and the coffee which it holds.
En coquilles—In shells. Ex.: Halibut en coquilles means that small pieces of fish are baked on shells. Real scallop shells are charming, and china imitations of them are also used.

Entrée—A made dish, served between courses or as a course by itself.

Farci—Oeufs farcis is only a chef’s way of saying stuffed eggs.

Fillet—Long, thin pieces of meat or fish.

Foie Gras—Fat liver, liver of specially fattened geese.

Frappé—Half frozen, or frozen to a mush.

Glacé—Iced or glossed over. Strawberries glacé may mean either frozen berries or those covered with a shiny, transparent film of hardened sugar syrup.

Grilled—Broiled. In the original meaning the broiling was done directly over a clear flame or a bed of red-hot coals.

Haricots—A bean. A stew in which meat and vegetables are finely divided.

Hors d’oeuvres—Side dishes. Olives, radishes, and celery are examples.

Jardinière—Mixed vegetables.

Lardons—Small pieces of salt pork or bacon used in frying or inserted in the top of a roast to add succulent flavor.

Macedoine—Mixture of several kinds of fruits or vegetables.

Marinate—To pickle in a French dressing.

Pâté de foie gras—Literally “pastry of goose livers.” A meat preparation the chief ingredient of which is the liver of specially fattened geese.

Pot au feu—Literally, the pot on the fire. Actually is a mixture of vegetables and meat boiled together.

Purée—Food boiled to a pulp and put through a sieve.

Ragoût—A sort of stew. Meat simmered with vegetables and highly seasoned.

Réchauffée—Literally, warmed again.

Roux—Thickening made by blending flour and melted butter.

Sauté—Literally, jumping. Is applied to the process of frying quickly in a small amount of fat, turning to brown evenly all over.

Soufflé—Literally, “puffed up.” A dish, served hot, made with eggs, milk, and flour, beaten light and combined with potato, cheese, fruit, or other flavoring. The dish has a delightful fluffy texture.

Timbale—A mixture of fish or cheese, or vegetables cooked in a special drum case. Also applied to a pastry case fried in deep fat on an iron especially designed for the purpose.

Velouté—A sauce made of white stock instead of milk. Vegetables and seasonings should be boiled in the stock to give it flavoring, then strained.

Vol-au-vent—A light puff paste with border high enough to hold a ragoût.
THIS FOR THAT

MILK

Evaporated milk, diluted with an equal measure of water, or dried milk reconstituted according to the directions on the package, may be used successfully in place of fresh milk in any recipe.

Condensed milk, a sweetened product, may be used in place of sugar and milk in sweetened mixtures, such as desserts (cornstarch, tapioca, rice, and gelatine), and cocoa. More sugar may be added if desired.

Where milk is used chiefly because it is a liquid and only secondarily because it is milk, water will do quite as well. In cakes and biscuits, for instance, this substitution will be unnoticed.

Other liquids too will answer. Potato water gives a moistness in cake and bread that is desirable. Rice water is often available. It is especially good in soups and gravies. Fruit juices may be used in cakes with very pleasing results as to flavor if the acid is neutralized with a little soda. The exact amount would need to be determined for each particular case. One-half teaspoon to a cup will be satisfactory in the majority of cases. Coffee is delicious in cakes, muffins, and in place of part of the milk in desserts.

If the milk you planned to use has soured it can be made just as good for baking by the addition of soda. One-half teaspoon to a cup is the average amount necessary.

SOUR MILK AND LEMON JUICE

It frequently happens that there is no sour milk on hand when the recipe calls for it. The addition of vinegar or lemon juice to sweet milk makes a satisfactory substitute. One tablespoon of acid to one cup milk will give a mixture the acidity of which will be neutralized by one-half teaspoon of soda to a cup of the milk. This is the acidity of the average sour milk.

In most recipes sweet milk may be used instead of sour, using two teaspoons baking powder in place of every half teaspoon of soda called for in the recipe. If the recipe uses molasses and sour milk, as many sour milk recipes do, instead of substituting baking powder for all the soda, use enough soda to neutralize the acid of the molasses (one teaspoon to a cup) and substitute for the rest.

In salad dressings lemon juice and vinegar are readily interchangeable. For a fruit salad, orange or grapefruit juice give a pleasing flavor.

In desserts and beverages any acid fruit juice may be used to advantage.

An excellent "lemon pie" can be produced without a lemon by using bottled lime juice.
CREAM—CHOCOLATE—FROSTING

Evaporated cream and evaporated milk, undiluted, are often used to take the place of cream. In coffee they have attained to popularity and are served regularly in many homes. In cooking they may also be used.

In thickened mixtures, soups, cream sauces, dessert foundations, milk, even skimmed milk, given a creamy tint with a bit of yellow coloring will often pass unquestioned. A little butter will help supply the fat content and make the flavor more like that of cream.

Cocoa plus fat equals chocolate, a fact which makes substitution very simple. Two tablespoons of cocoa and a teaspoon of fat will give approximately the food value of an ounce of chocolate. The flavor is almost exactly duplicated.

When you want to frost a cake and have no sugar, there are several possibilities.

Condensed milk thickened with powdered cocoa until of the right consistency to spread makes a delicious chocolate frosting.

Marshmallow cream is much used with cakes.

Jam or jelly sprinkled thickly with nuts or cocoanut is a welcome change from ordinary frosting.

SHORTENING

Any one fat may be substituted for any other.

The various cooking fats and oils which are prepared commercially are similar in action, though they differ in flavor. They may be used interchangeably or substituted for butter or margarine by decreasing the amount two tablespoons to the cup. Good drippings may be used in the same way. Of course the flavor must be considered. Ham, bacon, and mutton are not easily disguised unless used in a highly spiced mixture. Do not forget to add a pinch of salt when substituting an unsalted fat for a salted one.

To increase the quantity of frying fat, drippings again come in play. Mutton, ham, bacon, or even sausage fat in small quantities cannot be detected. For croquettes, cutlets and potatoes, the flavor is not objectionable and larger amounts may be used.

EGGS

One is especially likely to find the cupboard destitute of eggs—and sometimes they are so high in price and so difficult to obtain that one does not pretend to keep them on hand.

As a leavening agent baking powder may be used, substituting one teaspoon in place of each egg omitted. It is not advisable to try to substitute for more than two eggs. If you have no eggs and must make a cake, choose a one-egg cake rather than a four-egg recipe.
as a foundation. Or, better still, try a dark eggless cake. A recipe for an eggless chocolate cake will be found on page 67.

It is a great convenience to have dried egg whites on hand. Whenever you have an egg white left, place it on a plate and leave in a warm place until thoroughly dried, scrape off the crystals which will have formed and store in jars. A tablespoon of the powder dissolved in two tablespoons of water will equal one egg white. It beats up perfectly.

For thickening, a tablespoon of flour or half a tablespoon of cornstarch will take the place of one egg. A little yellow coloring will conceal the substitution from the eye.

Evaporated milk undiluted is really superior to milk for glazing. For dipping croquettes for frying it gives excellent results.

WHIPPED CREAM

Evaporated cream will whip, and evaporated milk may be beaten stiff if subjected to a certain process.

Put the milk in a bowl and set the bowl in a larger bowl or pan partly filled with cracked ice to which has been added one-fourth its amount of ice-cream salt. Let the milk chill for five minutes, then beat with an ordinary egg-beater. It should take ten minutes' beating to make a thick whip and in that time the milk will have increased to three times its original bulk. You will have a thick, creamy whip which is ready for use in cooking. For use on the table as whipped cream, add to one and one-half cups of the cream whip, three-quarters teaspoon of vanilla, one and one-half tablespoons sugar, a pinch of salt. Dissolve one-half teaspoon granulated gelatine which has been soaked in one tablespoon of hot water and add to the cream, whip again for a few minutes and chill.

Marshmallow Cream is a good topping in place of whipped cream. On custards, baked puddings, or pastry meringue is a good substitute for whipped cream. It may be baked on a dessert or on a dish of water and transferred to any dish for serving.

Fruit whip is delicious and not unlike stiffly beaten cream in texture. One egg white, one-half cup sugar, and one-half cup fruit pulp makes a cup and a half of the whip. Raw apple pulp makes a whip very delicate in flavor that combines well with almost anything. Any raw or cooked fruit purée may be used.

SUGAR AND SYRUPS

Syrups and honey may be used very satisfactorily in place of half the sugar in a recipe. They give a different texture, flavor, and intensity of sweetness from sugar, and if used in too large amounts are not acceptable.
In using brown, powdered, or confectioners' sugar in the place of white the substitution should be made by weight, not measure. Approximately one and one-third cups of brown sugar, or one and one-quarter cups of confectioners' sugar is equivalent to one cup of granulated.

For desserts and beverages condensed milk or sweet chocolate may be used to supply the sugar.

The different syrups may be substituted one for another by exercising a little judgment.

A brown sugar syrup is similar to molasses in flavor but is less acid. Syrup made by caramelizing sugar gives the same brown color, but is distinctive in flavor and entirely free from acid, so that, in baking, baking powder should be used with it in place of soda.

Maple syrup has an inimitable flavor. Brown sugar syrup flavored with vanilla and a light caramel syrup with maple flavoring approach it, and are good on pancakes and waffles.

BAKING POWDER

The use of soda and cream of tartar instead of baking powder is very common, for many baking powders are made up of just those ingredients. The correct proportion is two parts of cream of tartar to one part soda. Three-quarters of a teaspoon of the mixture is equal to one teaspoon of baking powder, the seeming discrepancy in the figures being accounted for by the fillers in commercially prepared baking powders.

Soda with any acid liquid will liberate carbon dioxide, the leavening agent furnished by baking powder. Substitute sour milk or acid fruit juice for sweet milk, or use a molasses recipe.

FLOUR

The characteristic action of flour is due to the gluten which it contains. Wheat flour is richer in gluten than the other flours, and really good results in baking cannot be obtained by substituting for the whole amount called for.

If one has no white flour, whole wheat is the most satisfactory substitute. Cakes and muffins made with entire wheat flour and camouflaged with spices will often be passed by an unsuspecting family.

Crumbs of all sorts may be used to advantage for part of the flour in dark breads, steamed puddings, cakes, and cookies. This substitution, by the way, furnishes an excellent opportunity for using the crumbs that always seem to accumulate in distressingly large amounts.

Cereals are excellent for thickening soups and gravies, the proportion depending on the kind of cereal and whether it has been previously cooked.
The substitution of bread flour for pastry is simple. One cup of pastry flour is equal to one cup of bread flour minus two tablespoons.

FLAVORINGS

One often finds oneself without certain flavorings, but it is sometimes possible to imitate them.

Vanilla and almond give pistachio. The combination of rose and almond results in a flavor very like sherry.

Orange or lemon peel may be used in place of the extracts.

In steamed pudding or fruit cake, orange marmalade will take the place of candied peel.

STOCK

Stock is largely a matter of liquid and seasoning, and substitutes are easily found.

Bouillon cubes, meat and vegetable extracts dissolved in water make excellent stock.

Canned bouillon or consommé are perfectly satisfactory.

Vegetable juices, fresh and canned, should be saved and used in place of part of the stock called for.

Plain water, judiciously seasoned with salt, pepper, celery, onion salt, parsley, and so forth, and colored with a little caramel may pass for stock. Caramel used for coloring should be very dark and at best it will change the flavor slightly.

CHICKEN — MUSHROOMS — CELERY

Mushrooms are often unavailable and are always a luxury. Cooked celery cut in small pieces may be used very successfully instead.

Instead of chicken use veal or pork cut in cubes, or tuna fish. Many a tuna fish salad has passed as chicken.

In uncooked mixtures, crisp cabbage cut fine may take the place of celery. A little celery salt or celery seed helps along the deception.

Dried celery leaves as well as the salt and seed may furnish the celery flavor to cooked mixtures.

It is an excellent plan to save the best leaves of every bunch of celery, dry them thoroughly and pulverize. The powder may then be kept in a salt-shaker and used in place of celery salt. Dried parsley will also be found worth the trouble of preparation.
QUANTITY COOKERY

BEVERAGES

Facts to Remember in Beverage Making

Cocoa, coffee, and tea all act as stimulants to a slight degree; but if properly prepared they can be taken in moderate amounts by a normal adult with no injurious effects.

Cocoa and chocolate have a high nutritive value in themselves, and when prepared with milk they are still more important as foods.

Both cocoa and chocolate are improved by boiling for a few minutes in a small quantity of water. The cooking brings out the flavor of the chocolate and makes the starch which the products contain more easily digested.

Boiled Coffee.—Boiling is probably the method of coffee making in commonest use. It is the most economical in coffee, but it produces the least delicacy of flavor and develops the largest amount of tannic acid. For it use coffee coarsely ground. Allow a level tablespoon of coffee for each cup to be served, and one extra for the pot. An egg, if the food budget allows it, is also called for. If a whole egg cannot be spared, shells of the eggs, used in routine cookery, carefully washed before breaking, will do nearly as well.

Mix the coffee well with the slightly beaten egg, or with the shells, and add one cup of cold water. Stir all together and let stand while the rest of the water is being heated. As soon as it comes to a jumping boil pour it over the mixture in the coffee-pot and let it boil not longer than three minutes.

Stuff the spout with paper towelling or a bit of immaculate cheese-cloth while the boiling goes on, unless you have the sort of coffee-pot in which the closing of the spout is provided for in the pot itself.

The egg clears the coffee, but two tablespoons of cold water added just before the coffee goes to the table will complete the process.

Percolator Coffee.—For percolating, the coffee should be ground more finely than for the preceding process. The consistency of granulated sugar is about right. Allow one tablespoon (level) for each cup. Either cold or hot water may be used in the percolator. Each has its advocates. We prefer to start with cold water and after the percolator begins to "plurp" we keep it going for five minutes. Coffee, in this process as in both the others, should be served immediately to be at its best.
Drip Coffee. — Dripping or filtering is the method beloved by epicures and favored by scientists. Coffee for it should be ground to the same texture as fine corn meal. It should feel a bit gritty when rubbed between the fingers. Pulverized coffee ground as fine as flour is too fine. It mats together and prevents the free penetration of water to extract flavor. A percolator may be used to hold the coffee, but unless the holes in the container are minute, cotton flannel, fuzz side up, or fine, firm muslin is better. Use a tablespoon of coffee for each cup, put the coffee in the container, take the required amount of water brought to a jumping boil, and pour it slowly through the coffee. If this does not make the flavor strong enough to suit the family either increase the amount of coffee or pour the water through a second time. The more epicurean of coffee drinkers say that a second pouring spoils the delicacy of flavor. No egg is needed for clearing. If the “drip” is fine enough the coffee will be clear.

One caution is necessary if you use a cloth drip. Let it be wide and shallow. A long conical drip does not allow the water to penetrate among the coffee particles as it should. For perfection in this method no metal must touch the coffee while the “drip” is in process. Use a glass, pottery or enamel pot.

TEA

Great care is the price of a really good cup of tea.

Tea should be kept in a tightly covered tin or jar.
The teapot, which should be of porcelain or earthenware, should always be scalded before being used.

Water used in making tea should be freshly boiled. Water boils when the entire surface breaks into bubbles.

Tea should never be allowed to boil.

Use the proportion of about one teaspoon of tea to one cup of water, this amount depending upon the kind of tea used and the strength desired.

Allow the tea to stand from one to five minutes in a hot place, this time also depending upon the kind of tea used. Five minutes is usually the maximum time, as after that, injurious qualities are produced.

A properly prepared brew of tea is never left standing on the leaves, but is strained off into a well-heated teapot or tea-urn.

CHOCOLATE

2 squares chocolate  ¼ cup sugar
½ cup boiling water  3 cups scalded milk

Melt chocolate and add water. Stir until smooth, add the sugar, boil three minutes, and add milk at once. Serve with whipped cream or marshmallows. Servings, 4.

FRENCH CHOCOLATE

| 1 quart milk | 1 tablespoon sugar |
| 4 ounces chocolate | 1 teaspoon arrowroot |

Put milk in double boiler, add the chocolate broken in small pieces, then the sugar. Stir until chocolate is dissolved. When chocolate is hot add arrowroot dissolved in a little water. Serve with whipped cream. Servings, 6.

MEXICAN CHOCOLATE

| 1 pint milk | 1½ tablespoons ground coffee |
| 2 inch piece of stick cinnamon | 1 ounce chocolate |
| ¼ cup boiling water |

SPICED CHOCOLATE ICED

| 1 pint milk | ½ teaspoon cinnamon |
| 1 cup sugar | 1 egg yolk |
| 1 tablespoon cornstarch | 1 teaspoon vanilla |
| 1 tablespoon cocoa |

Scald milk and add to other ingredients well mixed. Cook five minutes. Cool, flavor with vanilla and chill. Add cold milk to suit taste. Servings, 3.

CHOCOLATE SYRUP NO. 1.

| 2 squares chocolate | Pinch salt |

1 \text{ cup crystal white syrup} & \quad \text{1 tablespoon vanilla} \\
1 \text{ cup cocoa} &
\end{align*}

Put water and syrup on to boil. Mix with cocoa until a smooth paste, add condensed milk and cook in double boiler thirty minutes. Cool, add vanilla and bottle. For children’s cocoa add one tablespoon of syrup to cup of hot milk, or water and milk. As a sauce for puddings, and as the liquid in mixing frosting use syrup undiluted.

\begin{align*}
3 \text{ tablespoons cocoa} & \quad 1 \text{ cup water} \\
3 \text{ tablespoons sugar} & \quad 3 \text{ cups scalded milk} \\
\frac{1}{4} \text{ teaspoon salt} &
\end{align*}

Mix cocoa, sugar, and salt, add to boiling water and let boil eight to ten minutes. Add milk and serve at once. Equal parts of evaporated milk and water may be used. Servings, 6.

CRACKED COCOA

\begin{align*}
\frac{1}{2} \text{ cup cracked cocoa} & \quad 1 \text{ cup milk} \\
3 \text{ cups cold water} &
\end{align*}

To cocoa add water and boil one hour. Strain and add the milk. Serve with cream and sugar.

COFFEE WITH WHIPPED CREAM

1½ cups coffee
3 pints boiling water
½ pint cream

¾ cup sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla

Put coffee in cheese-cloth bag, add water and boil three minutes. Let stand ten minutes then remove bag and keep coffee hot until serving-time. Beat cream until stiff, add sugar and vanilla and serve a spoonful on each cup of coffee. Servings, 8.

ICED COFFEE

2 tablespoons coffee
3 cups water
1 teaspoon lime juice

2 tablespoons sugar
Ice

Make coffee in the usual way, add lime juice, sugar, and cool. A little lemon juice, and a few tiny pieces of fruit are just as delicious in coffee as tea. Cream added with chipped ice without the lime or lemon juice makes a delicious cold drink.

ICED VIENNA COFFEE

1½ cups finely ground coffee
6 cups water

1 egg or crushed shell

Make coffee as usual in the percolator or drip coffee pot. Strain through cheese cloth, chill, and serve with sweetened whipped cream. Servings, 8.

ICED TEA

1 cup boiling water
1 teaspoon tea

2 whole cloves
Chipped ice

Pour fresh boiling water over tea and cloves. Let stand two minutes, strain. Cool, add ice and more water if desired. Sweeten to taste. Lime or lemon juice added makes a more snappy drink and is more often preferred. Servings, 2.
A DELICIOUS TEA PUNCH

2 cups sugar
2 cups water
1 pint tea infusion
4 lemons (juice)
4 oranges (juice)

1 pint cherry juice
1 cup grated pineapple
1 quart Apollinaris or other charged water

Boil the sugar and the two cups of water together for ten minutes; when this is cold, add the tea infusion, using only the best tea to make this. Add the fruit juices, pineapple, and let stand a while. Then add the charged water, and enough iced water to make the desired strength. Servings, 25.

FRUIT BEVERAGES

Fruit beverages are most refreshing and healthful. When made of only one kind of fruit, they are called "ades,"—lemonade, orange-ade, pineappleade, etc., and when made of a combination of fruit juices they are spoken of as "punches."

Summer beverages are better and more quickly made if sweetened with a sugar syrup instead of granulated sugar. This syrup should be made ahead and kept on hand in a covered jar or a bottle. To make it, measure equal parts of sugar and water into a saucepan, place over the fire and stir until the sugar is dissolved, then let it boil without stirring for six or eight minutes. Cool and bottle. This blends more readily with the beverage than sugar and also gives a better body.

A plain lemonade may be "dressed up" with sprigs of mint, or cold tea, or grape juice, and the result is a good punch without using many ingredients.

A dash or two of soda-water which may be bought in a siphon at a druggist's, adds greatly to any drink; or we may add bottled charged water. Ginger ale, as well as charged water, gives a zest to all of these drinks.

CHERRY PUNCH

2 quarts white cherries
2 cups water
2 cups sugar
6 oranges

1 cup grated pineapple
1 cup tea infusion
1 quart carbonated water
½ teaspoon almond extract

Cover the cherries with the water and cook until the cherries are reduced to a pulp. Strain to remove skins and stones.
Add the sugar and cook for about ten minutes; cool and add the juice of the oranges and pineapple. Place on ice to chill and ripen. Add the tea, carbonated water, and almond extract, and sufficient cold water to make the desired strength. Place in a punch bowl with a block of ice and garnish with a few whole cherries. Red cherries may be used for this punch instead of white cherries. Servings, 25.

SWEET CIDER PUNCH

1 cup sugar
1 pint water
3 lemons

1 quart sweet cider
1 pint grape juice

Place the sugar in the water and boil for about ten minutes, adding a little of the outer lemon rind. When cold add lemon juice, then add the sweet cider and place in a freezer and freeze to a mushy consistency. When frozen mix in the grape juice. Serve in tall glasses. Dilute with a little cold water if too strong. Servings, 20.

CIRCUS PUNCH

1 cup sugar
1 cup water
2 lemons
1/2 cup apricot juice

1/4 cup prune juice
1/4 cup cherry juice
2 quarts water
Pink coloring

Boil sugar and water together about ten minutes. Cool, and add fruit juices to make one pint. Dilute with cold water and chill. Serve with cracked ice and cherries. A pretty pink color may be obtained by using vegetable coloring. Servings, 20.

CURRANTADE

1 1/2 cups sugar
2 cups hot water
1 pint cooked currant juice

3/4 cup lemon juice
3 quarts cold water

Dissolve sugar in hot water, add currant juice, lemon juice and cold water. Chill. A few pineapple cubes may be added, if liked. Seal in quart bottles and keep on ice. Servings, 30.
GINGER CRUSH

1 tablespoon crushed ginger 1 cup sugar
1 quart water ½ cup lemon juice

Boil ginger root in water twenty minutes. Add sugar and lemon juice. When cold remove ginger, and chill, adding more water if desired. One tablespoon of grated pineapple added to each serving is a delicious addition. Servings, 10.

GINGER PUNCH

1 quart water 1 cup sugar
½ cup lemon juice ½ cup orange juice
½ cup chopped preserved ginger ½ cup pineapple juice

Boil water, sugar and ginger slowly for fifteen minutes. Add fruit juices and chill. Tiny pieces of orange and pineapple may be added. Dilute as desired. Servings, 12.

GRAPE PUNCH

10 cups grape juice A few leaves of mint or lemon extract
Juice of 4 oranges and ½ 3 egg whites rind of one, grated 2 cups water
1 cup sugar
4 whole cloves

Mix six cups of grape juice with orange juice, sugar, cloves, and mint leaves. Bring to a boil, cool, and then let stand to ripen for three hours. When ready to use serve ice cold with the egg whites beaten stiff and folded in, and the other four cups of juice added with the two cups of water. Servings, 25.

GRAPEFRUIT PUNCH

2 cups sugar 1 orange
1 cup water 1 cup white unfermented grape juice
6 grapefruit

Make a syrup of the sugar and water. Add juices and pulp of grapefruit and orange. Cool, strain and add grape juice. Dilute with water to taste. Servings, 12.
FRUIT BEVERAGES

LEMONADE SYRUP

2 cups sugar
1 pint water
6 lemons

Cook the sugar and water together without stirring until it is a thick syrup, adding the grated outer rind of one of the lemons. When this is cool, add the juice of the lemons, and bottle. By diluting with ice water you may have lemonade at short notice. This syrup may also be used as a basis of many cooling drinks. By adding grape juice, you have grape-juice lemonade. A dozen sprigs of fresh spearmint added to a quart of lemonade will give you another flavor. Tea lemonade is made by taking a cup of the lemonade syrup and adding to it a pint of tea infusion, a quart of ice water, and, if liked, a fourth cup of orange or pineapple juice. You can make the lemonade syrup in any quantity you wish. Some people make the thick syrup, and add the lemon juice when making up the lemonade.

SPICED LEMONADE

Spiced lemonade may be made by adding three cloves and a stick of cinnamon to the above recipe.

ORANGE EGGNOG

1 egg
1 orange
1 tablespoon maple syrup

Beat egg, add juice of orange and beat again. Add the maple syrup and continue beating until well blended. The juice of two oranges may be used with one egg if desired.

PINEAPPLE PUNCH

1 cup juice from canned pineapple
3 tablespoons lime juice
3 tablespoons lemon juice

½ cup orange juice
1 cup sugar
1 cup boiling water
3 cups cold water

Mix fruit juices. Dissolve sugar in boiling water and boil two minutes. Cool and add to the fruit juices. Add cold water and pour over cracked ice. Serve with a maraschino cherry or sprig of mint in each glass. Servings, 10.

RASPBERRY MINT

1 sprig of mint
½ cup ripe raspberries
1 quart lemonade

Bruise the leaves and the stems of the mint, and crush the berries, putting them in the ice-cold lemonade at least two hours before using. Remove the mint before serving. Servings, 6.

RHUBARB PUNCH

3 pounds rhubarb
1 quart water
2½ cups sugar
1¼ cups orange juice
1 cup lemon juice
¾ cup shredded pineapple
3 quarts iced water

Cut rhubarb into small pieces and cook in water until tender (about twenty-five minutes) and strain. There should be two quarts of juice. Add the sugar while the juice is hot and stir until dissolved. Add fruit juices, and when cooled add the iced water. Serve with half slices of lemon and orange. Servings, 50.

WEDDING PUNCH

4 cups sugar
2 cups orange juice
2 cups lemon juice
2 cups pineapple juice
1 pint bottle maraschino cherries
Ice
2 quarts Apollinaris water

Combine sugar and fruit juices and let stand until the sugar is dissolved. Add the cherries and ice, and just before serving add the Apollinaris water. Garnish with slices of orange and lemon. Servings, 30.
BREADS

Facts to Remember about Bread Making

The only essential ingredients in bread making are flour, yeast, and liquid.

Flour made from hard or spring wheat, because it contains a larger proportion of gluten than soft or winter wheat flour, gives a dough that is elastic. For this reason it is preferred for breads in which yeast is the leavening agent.

The liquid may be milk, water, or potato water, or a mixture of the three. The larger the proportion of milk the greater the nutritive value of the loaf. The use of potato water hastens the action of the yeast and gives a loaf that does not dry quickly.

Yeast may be compressed or dry. The compressed cake, which must be used while fresh, is the most convenient form whenever it can be secured, because it acts rapidly. Dry yeast will keep indefinitely and on that account it is the most satisfactory form for households not near the market. In the dry yeast the yeast plants have become inactive and a longer time is required for the bread making process.

Potato yeast, which is started with a dry yeast cake is convenient to have on hand, and may be used very successfully by an experienced cook. Grate a raw potato, pour a little boiling water over it, and cook to a thick paste. When cool, add a little salt and sugar and a dry yeast cake, or part of one. Leave the mixture in a warm place for several hours until it is light and foamy. This kind of yeast takes the place of the yeast cake and part of the liquid in mixing bread.

A little salt is added to bread dough to prevent the growth of undesirable ferments and to give flavor to the bread. Too large a proportion of salt retards the action of the yeast.

It is not necessary to use sugar in bread making. A little is usually added however because it hastens the fermentation process and the flavor is generally liked. A very large amount retards the process.

Shortening as well adds a desirable flavor to bread. It also makes the dough tender, and helps to keep the loaf moist. An excess of shortening tends to retard the rising.

Too high a temperature kills the yeast plants, while cold renders them inactive. Yeast acts most rapidly at ordinary room temperature.

FANCY BREADS

BREAD RING AND BRAID

2½ cups milk  2 tablespoons sugar or honey
1 yeast cake (dry or compressed)  1 egg
Flour  ¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening  1 teaspoon almond extract

The milk should be scalded, and cooled until lukewarm. Dissolve the yeast cake in one-half cup of it. Then add one-half cup of flour. Mix thoroughly by beating and let rise. When it has doubled its bulk add four and one-half cups of flour and repeat the rising process. Next add all the other ingredients and flour to make a dough just stiff enough to handle (probably about one and one-half cups will be needed). Toss on a floured surface, knead, cover, and let rise a third time.

TO MAKE A RING

Roll out the dough as thinly as possible, spread with melted butter and sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon.

Roll like a jelly roll. The dough will probably stick and have to be coaxed to roll with a knife.

Stretch if necessary to make it long enough to form a good ring.

Cut a piece from each end and join the two ends to make a circle.

Cut at regular intervals with the kitchen shears from outside edge almost to center.

TO MAKE A BRAID

Cut three pieces of dough of equal size.

Roll them into equal lengths with the hands.

Fasten three ends together and braid evenly.

The braid may be put on a greased baking sheet or shaped around a circular dish. Let the braid rise, brush it with an egg yolk, beaten and diluted with half a tablespoon of cold... water. Bake in a moderately hot oven. Chopped nuts or sugar and cinnamon may be sprinkled over it before it is baked, if you choose.

Time in oven, 20 minutes. Temperature, 380°.

CLOVER-LEAF CORN ROLLS

1 cup hot milk
⅛ cup corn flour or fine cornmeal
½ cake yeast
3 tablespoons lukewarm water
2 or 3 tablespoons shortening
½ tablespoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
2½ cups wheat flour

Pour hot milk over corn flour or meal, and let stand until lukewarm. Add yeast, which has been dissolved in lukewarm water, and remaining ingredients. Knead until dough is smooth and elastic. Brush with cold water to prevent crust forming, and let stand until light. Have muffin-pans greased. Form dough into balls about an inch in diameter and put three into each muffin-pan. Use no flour in shaping rolls, but keep fingers well greased. Let rise until double in bulk, and bake in hot oven twenty minutes or more according to size of pans. Served with honey or jam, these make a very satisfying luncheon dessert.

Time in oven, 20 minutes. Temperature, 400°.

EGG BUNS

4 eggs
1 pint bread dough
3 tablespoons brown sugar
1 cup flour
3 tablespoons melted butter or lard

Work the eggs into the dough one at a time, stir in the sugar, flour, and the melted shortening, then set the dough to rise until light. Work it again and drop into muffin-pans, brush over with beaten egg and sprinkle with brown sugar. Bake until a nice brown in a moderately hot oven.

Time in oven, 20 minutes. Temperature, 375°.
ENGLISH MUFFINS

2 cups milk  2 eggs
1 cake yeast  2 teaspoons salt
5½ cups flour 1 tablespoon sugar
½ cup melted butter

Scald milk and cool until lukewarm. Dissolve yeast in two tablespoons of milk and add to the rest. Add two and one-half cups of flour. Beat well, let rise until light. Add butter, eggs, salt, sugar, and flour to make a dough as soft as can be handled (about three cups), and let rise until double in bulk. Cut off pieces of dough and shape in large flat biscuits (four inches in diameter and one-third inch thick). Let rise on well-floured board until light. Have griddle heated, and, if not aluminum, greased. Remove muffins to griddle with broad spatula. Cook rather slowly until browned on one side, then turn and brown the other side. Tear apart, toast, and spread with melted butter.

JELLY BUNS

1 yeast cake 3 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon sugar ½ cup sugar
1¼ cups milk, scalded and cooled 1 egg
4½ cups sifted flour 1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

Dissolve yeast and one tablespoon sugar in lukewarm milk, add one and one-half cups of flour, and beat well. Cover and set aside until light, about three-quarters of an hour. Add to sponge creamed butter and sugar, lightly beaten egg, salt, nutmeg, and remainder of flour to make soft dough. Let rise two hours. QUICK BREADS

The chief difference between quick breads and yeast breads is in the leavening agent. Quick breads are made light by a gas liberated through the chemical action of an acid on an alkali, or by the incorporation of air into the batter or dough. The action of these forms of leavening is much more rapid than that of yeast, making it possible to prepare the breads very quickly and easily.

Baking powder is the leavening agent most commonly used in quick breads. It is a combination of sodium bicarbonate (ordinary baking soda) and some form of acid, with a filler of starch to prevent the ingredients from absorbing moisture and acting on each other during storage in the can.

There are three types of baking powder — cream of tartar, phosphate, and alum. The name is derived in each case from the acid used in the powder. Much has been said against each variety but in the quantities in which they are used there is no possible harm in any one of them. Choice should be made according to price and action. Cream of tartar powders are less readily soluble than the others and so contain less filler. Phosphate powders act rapidly. With the alum powders the action is slower and so gas is developed more continuously.

It is possible for the housekeeper to make her own baking powder by mixing two parts of cream of tartar with one of soda, but it is not advisable except as an emergency measure. The commercially prepared products are combined with laboratory precision and are far more dependable.

All cooks are familiar with the use of soda with sour milk or molasses for leavening purposes. The principle is the same as that of baking powder, that is the action of soda and an acid to produce a gas. It is impossible to be absolutely accurate in the use of this form of measuring, because the degree of acidity in sour milk and molasses is variable. The general rule is to use half a teaspoonful to each cup of molasses.

When air is used as a leavening agent it is incorporated into the mixture by beating the batter directly, or by adding eggs which have already been beaten.

The proportion of liquid to flour in quick breads depends chiefly upon the method of baking.

For breads which are baked in loaves, and for biscuits that must retain their shape in baking, a soft dough is used. This is a mixture containing approximately three cups of flour to one of liquid.
A thick batter—a mixture containing from one and a half to two and a half cups of flour to every cup of liquid—is used for muffins and drop biscuits.

Hot breads which are cooked in thin sheets like griddle cakes and waffles require a thin batter, made with practically equal parts of liquid and flour. Popovers, also, are made with a thin batter.

Slight variations will have to be made in these general proportions, depending upon the other ingredients used. A batter or dough containing sugar, shortening, nuts, or fruit requires more flour than one less rich. Differences in the thickening powers of flour must also be considered.

CRULLERS, DOUGHNUTS AND FRITTERS

Facts to Remember

The products of deep fat frying have a reputation for indigestibility which is deserved only when there is something wrong with the procedure. One difficulty is that under certain conditions foods absorb more fat in frying than can be easily taken care of by the digestion, and another, that at a certain temperature, differing with each kind of fat, a change takes place which develops an indigestible product called acreolin. This is recognizable by its acrid odor. Fat should never be used after it has reached this point.

The temperature of the fat is of utmost importance in frying. If it is not hot enough the food absorbs fat; if too hot the outside browns before the inner part is thoroughly cooked. A thermometer is essential for the inexperienced cook in controlling the temperature, and is advisable in any case.

Next to the frying temperature, experience in handling the dough is the most important point in successful doughnut making.

Dough which has been chilled can be more easily handled and absorbs less fat than the same dough at room temperature.

In putting doughnuts into the fat, have the part which has been next to the molding board uppermost.

Only a few doughnuts or fritters should be fried at one time, because the cold dough cools the fat rapidly.

Fried foods should be drained on absorbent paper.

There is no marked difference in the amount of absorption power for the various fats and oils in common use,

GRIDDLE CAKES, MUFFINS AND WAFFLES

Facts to Remember

The pancake griddle should be just hot enough to allow drops of cold water sprinkled on its surface to keep their shape for a few seconds. If the drops spread out on the griddle the temperature is too low. If they break up and evaporate immediately the temperature is too high. When a griddle thermometer is used it should register 225 degrees F.

A waffle iron is tested for temperature in the same way as a pancake griddle. Waffle molds should be thoroughly heated on both sides before the batter is poured in. Iron molds must be greased before each waffle is cooked. Aluminum molds do not require greasing.

It is convenient to pour pancake and waffle batter from a pitcher.

Pans of a heavy material are best for baking popovers. They may be of iron, earthen-ware, or glass. The pans should be heated before using.

Stale muffins may be freshened very satisfactorily by dipping quickly in hot water and putting in a hot oven for a few minutes, or they may be split and toasted.

CAKE, COOKIES AND GINGERBREAD

Facts to Remember about Cake Making

However wide the apparent variety there are only two kinds of cake; butter cakes, which contain fat of some kind, and sponge cakes, which are made without fat. Butter cakes usually depend upon a chemical leavening agent, while in sponge cakes air incorporated in beaten eggs supplies the leavening.

Variety in cakes is obtained by combining the ingredients in different proportions, by using different flavors and spices and by adding enriching ingredients like fruit and nuts. Raised cake, made with a foundation of bread dough, comes in the class of butter cakes.

Pastry flour, because of its large proportion of starch, makes lighter and more tender cake than does bread flour. For the very best results the flours milled especially for cake making, from wheat high in starch, are to be recommended.

Careful mixing is of the utmost importance in cake making. For example, one of the commonest faults in the mixing of butter cakes is insufficient creaming of the shortening and sugar. The shortening should be creamed until it is very soft, and the sugar added gradually. The whole mass should be kept light and fluffy. Eggs should be thoroughly beaten before adding, and the batter should be beaten after the flour is added. With sponge cakes, the egg yolks, flour, and sugar should be thoroughly blended to insure a fine texture. Egg whites should be folded in gently so that the air which they hold will be retained.

Divide the baking time for cake into quarters: (1) During the first quarter the cake should begin to rise, and at the end of that time the portion nearest the tin should be higher than the rest, and bubbles should show over the top. (2) During the second quarter the rising should continue, and the cake should appear slightly baked next to the tin, with bubbles still showing through the centre. (3) During the third quarter the baked appearance should extend over the top, and browning should take place. (4) During the last quarter the cake should finish browning and shrink from the tin. Opening the oven door and moving the cake gently is safe after the first half of the baking time is over.

The most common baking fault is too hot an oven. In too hot an oven the cake bakes (and sometimes burns) next the pan and over the top, before the rising is complete. As a result the gas, which continues to expand, either humps the cake in the place where the heat is lowest, or makes a crack there through which the expanding batter can escape.

The oven temperature varies with the nature of the batter and the form in which it is baked. A very rich cake requires a slower oven than a simpler cake does. A cake containing molasses tends to burn easily, and therefore needs to be baked more slowly than a similar mixture made with white sugar. A loaf should be baked at a lower temperature than a thin sheet or individual cakes. Sponge and angel cake require a very moderate oven.

Variations of any plain cake recipe may be made in the following ways:

Add enriching ingredients to the recipe, chopped nuts, raisins, bits of candied fruit, separately or in combination. Berries and fresh fruits may also be used.

Use the vegetable colorings. In combination with a change of flavoring these are especially effective for "show cakes."

Variety in shape may be had by baking the cake in a high, narrow tin, in a broad shallow tin, in muffin tins (large and small), in layer cake-pans, and in well-greased jelly molds.

CAKE

Cream butter and sugar, add beaten eggs and molasses. Sift dry ingredients, add, and beat thoroughly. Add chopped fruits and beat again. Any combination of dried candied fruits may be used. Bake very slowly in a moderate oven. Keep in a cool but not too moist place, as age improves this cake. The coffee should be poured or sprinkled carefully over the cake as it is taken from the oven. CEREALS

Points to Remember about Cereals

Cereal products, taken as a whole, furnish greater nutritive value for a given expenditure than any other class of food.

The most widely distributed breakfast cereals in our country are wheat, oats, and corn. We are familiar with them as whole grains, in cracked form, made into flakes, or ground into grits or meal. Barley, rye, and rice also appear on the breakfast table. Many of the prepared cereals are combinations of different grains.

Rice is extensively used in combination with meat, cheese, or vegetables as a main dish for luncheon or dinner, and also has a place in the making of desserts.

Macaroni and spaghetti are flour products belonging in the cereal class. They are used chiefly like rice in the preparation of luncheon dishes.

Whole grains and those containing the bran coating are particularly valuable in the dietary because they furnish minerals and vitamins that are not found in the highly refined products.

Cereals should be very thoroughly cooked in order to break open the starch cells. All starchy foods are difficult of digestion unless the cell walls are broken down in preparation. It is especially important to consider this point in preparing cereals for babies.

The tireless cooker is an ideal device in which to prepare cereals. A double boiler gives equally good results and if used over a simmering burner is not extravagant of fuel. Cereals may be cooked more quickly by boiling, but the danger of burning makes constant watching necessary.

Before the cereal mixture is put into the tireless cooker or double boiler, it should be brought to the boiling point and cooked with constant stirring until slightly thickened.

To prevent lumping, the dry cereal should be sprinkled slowly into rapidly boiling water or mixed with a little cold water before the boiling water is added.

Left-over cereal may be molded in small cups and served as dessert with fruit, whipped cream, or a sweet sauce. Or it may be molded in a loaf, sliced, sautéed in fat, and served with sugar or syrup.
A GOOD BREAKFAST CEREAL

1 cup bran
1 cup rolled oats
1 teaspoon salt
1 quart water
¼ cup farina

Add the bran and oats to the salted boiling water, and cook in a double boiler four hours. Then add the farina and continue the cooking for one hour more. Servings, 10.

CORN MEAL MUSH

1 cup corn meal
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup cold water
3 cups boiling water

Mix together corn meal, salt, and cold water, add boiling water and stir until smooth and boiling. Cook in a double boiler three hours or more. Serve with whole milk, or butter and syrup, for breakfast, luncheon or supper. Servings, 6.

HOMINY

1 cup hominy grits
Salt to taste
4 cups water

Add the hominy grits to the four cups of salted water. Cook for twenty-five minutes directly over the blaze, stirring constantly, or for forty-five minutes in a double boiler. Longer cooking destroys the flavor. Servings, 6.

SAMP

1 cup samp
Salt to taste
1 quart water

Wash samp and soak over night in the water. Next day cook gently in the same water for five hours. A double boiler is best for the process. Do not boil, because hard cooking makes samp tough. It can be used as a cereal or as a vegetable. Cooked, in a casserole mixed with cheese, or meat, or tomato, it is delicious. Servings, 6.
CONFECTIONS

Facts to Remember in Candy Making

For uniform results in candy making a thermometer is indispensable. A test made by dropping a little of the syrup in cold water serves to some extent as a guide, but even in the hands of an experienced candy maker it is necessarily more or less inaccurate.

The following table gives the cold water test for sugar syrup and the corresponding degree on the thermometer.

The candy kettle should have a perfectly smooth inner surface and be preferably of heavy material so that the syrup will not stick and scorch.

To prevent the graining of candies like fudge, penuchi and fondant, which ought to be creamy in texture, the syrup should be cooled until lukewarm before it is beaten.

A clear cool day is best for candy making.

GRILLED ALMONDS, CALIFORNIA STYLE

1 cup almonds 2 tablespoons orange juice
1 cup sugar 2 tablespoons lemon juice

Blanch almonds and dry them thoroughly. Boil sugar and fruit juices until the syrup forms a long thread when dropped from a spoon. Add almonds and let cook to hard crack stage. Remove instantly and stir until it sugars. Cool and separate the almonds to which the sugar will cling irregularly.

APPLE ALLIES

2 cups sugar 1 cup water

101
Bring sugar and water to a boil. Drop in pieces of pared, cored, and sliced apple. Allow to cook until transparent and tender enough to pierce with a straw. Take from the syrup and drain. Dry for a day on waxed paper or a platter and roll in granulated sugar.

UNCOOKED CHOCOLATE ORANGE CREAM WAFERS

| 1/4 pound bitter chocolate | 3/4 cup finely cut crystallized orange peel |
| 1 1/4 cups confectioners’ sugar | 1/4 pound sweet chocolate |
Melt the bitter chocolate in a double boiler and spread with a knife on heavy waxed paper on which has been drawn an oblong, six inches by twelve inches. To the confectioners’ sugar add one teaspoon grated orange peel, and two tablespoons juice (enough to moisten the sugar so that it will spread without running). Add the crystallized orange peel and when the oblong of chocolate is hard spread on it the orange mixture as evenly as possible. Melt the sweet chocolate and spread on another sheet of waxed paper, making an oblong the same size as the first. Turn the first sheet face down on this melted chocolate and press with the hand over the wrong side of the paper. When the chocolate is hard pull off the papers and cut the candy in squares to serve as a confection. This is really a very simple process, and the wafers are delicious, something one cannot buy at a candy shop.

DESSERTS

The choice of dessert is one of the most perplexing questions for the menu-maker to decide. In its proper function it is intended to make the meal more attractive and to complete it from dietary standards. It is the character of the dessert that is most likely to be disregarded. Too often a heavy dessert is added to a meal already high in food value just because we have acquired the habit of ending a meal with a sweet. It is important that the menu-maker have at her command a large number of ideas for desserts to enable her to maintain a proper balance in meals of widely differing nature.

COLD DESSERTS

Facts to Remember When Making Cold Desserts

GELATINES

Any liquid may be used as the foundation of gelatine desserts. Milk, coffee, cocoa, tea, milk partially thickened with eggs or starch, and fruit juices and syrups of various kinds offer an almost endless variety of combinations.

Gelatine should always be softened in cold liquid and then dissolved in hot liquid or over hot water.

A gelatine dessert should be just stiff enough when cold to hold its shape. If too heavy with gelatine it is rubbery and unappetizing.

The amount of gelatine depends upon the time that can be allowed for cooling, the temperature at which the mixture stands and the acidity of the liquid. Without ice, from twelve to twenty-four hours is necessary. With ice or in cold weather, gelatine mixtures will stiffen in from one to three hours, depending upon the size of the mold. Increasing the gelatine decreases the time. A mixture containing the juice of a citrus fruit or tomato juice requires a third more gelatine than other mixtures.

Raw pineapple acts upon gelatine in such a way as to prevent it from solidifying. The difficulty may be avoided by cooking the pineapple before the gelatine is added.

A gelatine mixture which has thickened to the consistency of egg white behaves much like egg white when it is beaten — its texture and color are changed and it becomes what is called a sponge. The texture may be further modified by folding in beaten egg whites. If whipped cream is added to the sponge it is called Bavarian cream.
The most important points to remember in cooking custard desserts are that the temperature must not be too high and the mixture must not cook too long. Baked custards should be set in a pan of water in the oven. Soft custard is most successfully made in a double boiler. It should be stirred constantly.

A custard is milk thickened with egg and sweetened and flavored in various ways. It is a popular dessert made in many forms.

Custard may be baked in the oven or cooked over hot water. The latter variety is called soft or "boiled" custard.

The consistency of a custard depends upon the proportion of egg to milk. One egg will thicken a cup of milk to make a thin soft custard or a custard baked in individual cups. For a thick custard or a custard that can be baked in a large mold more egg is necessary. A little cornstarch or flour may be substituted for part of the egg.

BLANC-MANGES

Blanc-manges are made with a liquid foundation, usually all or part milk, thickened with some form of starch. Cornstarch is most commonly used. Many variations are possible by the addition of different ingredients.

A blanc-mange requires at least fifteen minutes cooking after it has thickened, to make the starch palatable and easy to digest.

Two tablespoons of cornstarch to a cup of milk is the correct proportion for a plain blanc-mange that will hold its shape when molded and yet be delicate in texture.

FROZEN DESSERTS

Facts to Remember about Frozen Desserts

The texture of frozen desserts depends upon the nature of the mixture and the proportion of ice and salt used in freezing it.

A mixture which is given body by cream or eggs, or is thickened with a starch or gelatine, will be smoother than one containing a large proportion of water and nothing to thicken it.

For smooth, fine-grained ice cream, sherbet, or water ice, three parts of ice to one of salt should be used. For frappés, a coarser texture is desired and equal parts of ice and salt are used. Mousses and parfaits, rich mixtures frozen without stirring, require two parts of ice to one of salt.

The ice should be broken in pieces small enough to prevent the formation of large air spaces between, but not so fine that melting will take place rapidly. The salt and ice should be thoroughly mixed before putting them in the freezer.

With any mixture that is stirred during the freezing process, the can should not be more than three-quarters full, to allow for swelling.

The crank should be turned slowly at first, and then more rapidly in order to beat air into the mixture as it begins to freeze.

When the mixture is frozen the water which has accumulated in the pail should be poured off and the freezer refilled with four parts of ice to one of salt.

Ice creams and sherbets should stand for at least an hour before serving. This ripening process improves the flavor and the texture.
FROZEN DESSERTS

Mousses and parfaits require from two to four hours to freeze, depending upon the richness of the mixture and the size of the mold.

To mold ices and creams, pack the frozen mixture solidly into chilled molds, and fill the molds completely. Cover with heavy waxed paper, put on the covers, and seal the edges with strips of cloth dipped in melted lard or other solid fat. Bury the molds in ice and salt. To unmold, rinse with cold water and wipe dry, remove the covers, invert the molds on a platter, and wrap for a moment with a cloth wrung out of hot water.

HOT DESSERTS

Facts to Remember in Preparing Hot Desserts

Almost any cake served hot with a sauce makes an acceptable dessert.

Steamed pudding may be cooked in molds set in a steamer or placed on a trivet in a kettle of boiling water.

Molds for steamed puddings should be filled not more than two-thirds full. If the batter does not have room to rise completely it will be heavy.

In order to have a light pudding the steaming must continue without interruption; if water must be added to the kettle it should be boiling. The cover of the steamer should fit closely.

A steamed pudding while hot is cut more easily with a string than with a knife.

Steaming in individual molds cuts down the time of cooking and makes serving easier. Ordinary custard cups covered with waxed or greased paper will answer for the purpose.

Biscuit dough forms the basis for an endless variety of fruit shortcakes, rolls, and dumplings.

Pudding with an egg and milk foundation, such as bread pudding, should be baked at a low temperature like a custard.

EGG AND CHEESE DISHES

Facts to Remember When Planning Egg and Cheese Dishes

Both eggs and cheese have an important place in the dietary, because they are rich in tissue-building material and contain valuable minerals and vitamins. In menu-making it should be remembered that eggs and cheese as sources of protein are substitutes for meat.

Eggs are one of the most easily digested foods that we have. Cheese is a very concentrated food, but if used in combination with other foods or by itself in moderate quantities, it is not likely to overtax the normal digestion.

Eggs and cheese, like all protein foods, should be cooked at a low temperature. If subjected to too much heat, the protein coagulates into a tough leathery mass that is neither appetizing nor easily digested. Over-cooking of egg and cheese mixtures causes the curdling which is so objectionable.

FISH

Facts to Remember about Fish Cookery

Fish is important in the dietary as a source of protein. The housekeeper values it, too, because of the variety it lends to her menus.

From a dietary point of view there are two classes of fish—lean or dry-meated fish like haddock, cod and halibut, and fat fish such as mackerel, salmon, shad and blue fish.

In purchasing fish one of the most important points to consider is its freshness. When fresh the flesh is firm and elastic so that it springs back when pressed with the finger. The eyes are bright and clear and the gills bright red in color. It is not strong in odor.

Fish is usually cleaned and dressed at the market and need only be wiped with a damp cloth to remove any loose scales and clotted blood.
Sometimes, however, it reaches the kitchen in its natural condition.

The first step in dressing fish is to remove the scales. This is done by scraping with a dull knife, beginning at the tail and working toward the head. The entrails are then removed by slitting the underside of the fish with a sharp knife from the head nearly to the tail and drawing them out with the fingers. The head and tail may be removed or left on as preferred. Large fish usually have the head and tail removed, except sometimes when they are to be baked. Small fish are often cooked with the head and tail on.

To skin a fish remove the fins and a strip of skin the length of the back bone. Loosen the skin on one side at the bony part and draw it off, separating from the flesh with a knife when necessary.

To bone a fish run a sharp knife close to the backbone and ribs, beginning at the tail. Remove all the flesh from one side in a single piece. Small bones that remain may be picked out with the fingers.

A fillet of fish is a small piece with skin and bone removed. Large fish like halibut are cut into slices crosswise and the slices divided into smaller pieces. Small fish are boned and cut in pieces of the desired size.

Fish may be boiled, steamed, baked, broiled, fried or sautéed. The method of cooking to be chosen depends upon the nature of the fish.

Boiling.—Small cod or haddock and thick slices of larger fish like salmon and halibut may be boiled or steamed to good advantage.
Water in which fish is boiled should be salted and have a little lemon juice or vinegar added to it to keep the flesh light in color. Steaming has the advantage of retaining all the nutriment and flavor, but it is more difficult to cook seasoning into the fish. It is wise to tie fish in a piece of cheesecloth for boiling or steaming so that it can be handled without breaking.
Baking.—For baking, whole fish of medium size are most often used. A stuffing adds flavor, and a few slices of bacon or salt pork spread over the fish while it is cooking supply fat. Small fish and slices of large fish are sometimes cooked in a hot oven instead of being broiled.

Broiling.—Small and medium-sized fish like mackerel, bluefish and haddock are prepared for broiling by splitting down the back. Slices of halibut, sword fish and salmon may also be broiled. The fish should be wiped as dry as possible, sprinkled with salt and pepper and placed on a well-greased broiler. Whether the skin or flesh side of a whole fish should be broiled first is a debatable point. Broiling the flesh side first prevents the escape of juices, but if the skin side is done first the fish is easier to handle. It is difficult to turn fish during the broiling in the ordinary broiling oven. For this reason it is best to cook one side thoroughly before turning.

Frying or Sautéing. Fish of any kind is often fried or sautéed, although in a dietary sense the lean fish are better adapted to this method of preparation. Small fish are fried whole and larger ones made into fillets. Fish should be wiped dry, seasoned with salt and pepper, rolled in flour or crumbs, beaten eggs, and crumbs again, and fried in deep fat until browned. For sautéing, fish is rolled in flour or corn meal. Salt pork is a particularly good fat to use.

There are various kinds of sauces suitable for serving with fish, but acid sauces are best used with fish richest in fat, while lean fish prepared without the addition of fat call for rich sauces. Lemon may be used as a garnish for fish, and served with it.

Many varieties of fish may be purchased in cans, and others are preserved by salting or smoking, so that fish is always available, even far inland.

Shell fish are important for their unique and delicate flavors. The distinctive dishes of which they are the basis solve many a menu problem.

FROSTINGS AND FILLINGS

Facts to Remember about Frostings and Fillings

Frostings are of two kinds, cooked and uncooked.

Most cooked frostings are made by boiling a syrup to the soft ball stage and beating it until creamy, or adding it to stiffly beaten egg whites. The surest way for success with cooked frostings is to use a candy thermometer.

Uncooked frostings are made with confectioners' or powdered sugar, preferably the former, moistened with some liquid to make it of the right consistency to spread, and flavored in different ways. The addition of butter helps to keep the frosting moist and takes away the raw taste.

Any frosting may be used as a filling. For fillings less sweet than a regular frosting, mixtures thickened with cornstarch or flour, or fruits cooked to a paste are good.

Always pour frosting on the center of the cake and as far as possible let it spread itself, aiding it, when necessary, with a knife. Either frost the sides like the top or take care that no drops run down from the top.

When covering small cakes with boiled frosting place the cake on an inverted cup and set the cup over a jar so that it may be twirled about easily. Cover the top of the cake with frosting and let it come well down over the sides. Hold a small spatula straight against the side of the cake and twirl the cup. The sides of the cake will be frosted smoothly and the edges attractively ridged.

If fondant is used for coating small cakes it should be melted and the cakes dipped into it.

When a soft filling is used for a cake the top is attractive if sprinkled with powdered sugar instead of being frosted.

For decorating frosted cakes, candied fruit, angelica, colored citron, tiny candies, orange peel, preserved ginger, nuts or colored popcorn may be used, or some of the frosting may be forced through a pastry tube.

BAGDAD FROSTING

2 cups granulated sugar 1 cup figs, cut up small
1/2 cup water

Put sugar and water over fire and cook until it will form a soft ball when dropped in cold water. Do not stir the syrup.

193
Add figs and boil up again. When slightly brittle in cold water, remove from fire and beat until it thickens. Spread on cake before it cools. This makes an unusual frosting or filling, and when dropped on waxed paper, a very delicious candy results. Enough frosting for 12 cup cakes.

BOILED FROSTING

1 cup sugar  2 egg whites
½ cup boiling water  ½ teaspoon vanilla

Dissolve sugar in boiling water, and boil without stirring until a soft ball is formed when a little is dropped in cold water. Have egg whites beaten until stiff and dry. Pour sugar syrup over them in a fine stream, beating constantly. Continue beating until stiff enough to hold shape. Add vanilla.

CARAMEL FROSTING No. 1.

1 egg white  Brown sugar
2 tablespoons rich milk  Cocoanut

Beat egg white until it is very stiff and dry. Add rich milk, and enough sugar to make a mixture that will spread without running. After it has been spread on the cake sprinkle with cocoanut.

CARAMEL FROSTING No. 2.

2 cups brown sugar  2 tablespoons butter
2 teaspoons flour  1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup milk  2 tablespoons marshmallow whip

Mix sugar and flour, add milk and butter, and cook until it forms a firm ball in cold water. Beat until thick, add flavoring and marshmallow. Beat until smooth. Marshmallow may be omitted.

CHOCOLATE FROSTING

Add to Plain Frosting one square of chocolate melted over hot water and mixed with one tablespoon of warm water.
FROSTINGS

CHOCOLATE ICING

\( \frac{3}{4} \) cup cream
2 squares melted chocolate
Pinch salt
\( \frac{1}{2} \) teaspoon vanilla
Mix sugar, cream, chocolate, and salt. Boil slowly and carefully until a little tried in cold water forms a soft ball. Let cool slightly and flavor. Beat until thick enough to spread on cake without running.

INCH HIGH FROSTING

3 tablespoons cold water
1 cup sugar
\( \frac{1}{4} \) cup hot water
2 egg whites

Soak gelatine in cold water and dissolve over steam. Dissolve sugar in hot water and boil until the syrup will spin a thread. Strain gelatine into syrup. Have egg whites beaten very stiff on a platter, add syrup slowly, beating constantly. When all the syrup has been added, turn the mixture into the top of a double boiler and cook until it is stiff enough to hold its shape, stirring all the time with a wooden spoon.

MAPLE FROSTING
1 cup maple sugar
\( \frac{1}{2} \) cup thin cream
1 tablespoon butter
Cut or break sugar in small pieces, add cream and butter, heat slowly, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Boil to soft ball stage and beat until thick enough to spread.

MAPLE SYRUP FROSTING
\( \frac{1}{4} \) cup maple syrup

ORANGE COCOA FROSTING

1 cup powdered sugar
1 orange (grated rind)
4 tablespoons cocoa

2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon orange juice
½ cup figs, cut in small pieces

Put sugar and water in saucepan. Stir until sugar is dissolved and put on stove to boil. Beat egg whites until stiff, add one tablespoon boiling syrup and continue beating while four more tablespoons syrup are being added. Let syrup continue to boil until it spins a long thread when dropped from a spoon, and add to whites of eggs in fine steady stream, beating with egg-beater constantly. Remove egg-beater, beat with spoon until cold, set over hot water and fold over and over until frosting holds its shape. Reserve enough frosting for top and sides of cake and add chocolate. To remaining frosting add candied pineapple, cut in small pieces, chopped almonds, filberts, lemon juice, orange juice, and figs. Put this on first and then double frost with a layer of the chocolate mixture.

MEAT

The preparation of any meat in such a way as to emphasize its good points requires not only a knowledge of underlying principles but care in applying them as well. It is just as possible to ruin a choice piece of meat through careless cooking as to make an inferior cut palatable by adopting the proper method.

Roasting and Broiling. — By roasting and broiling a delicious flavor is developed in meats but this method is suitable only for meats that are short-fibred, fine-grained and which do not contain tough connective tissue. These cuts come from the parts of the animal where the muscles are least used.

The less choice cuts of meats require a more moist atmosphere to make them tender. Pot roasting, stewing and braising can be used successfully.

Roasts should first be subjected to intense heat, which will quickly sear over the surface and prevent the escape of juices. A little flour rubbed over the meat helps to keep in the juices and facilitates browning. After the surface is seared the heat should be reduced, otherwise the outer portion will become dry and hard before the heat has penetrated to the centre. The larger the roast the lower the temperature should be. A roast of pork may be cooked in a moderate oven for the entire period because the surface is so much protected by fat. Unless a covered roaster is used the meat should be basted frequently with the liquid in the pan.

The principle involved in broiling is the same as in roasting. It is used for small pieces of meat instead of large. Intense heat is applied to sear the surface and then the cooking is completed at a lower temperature.

The result obtained by broiling may be approximated in a pan. The meat is seared on both sides in a very hot pan without fat and then cooked more slowly until done.

Pot-Roasting. — In pot-roasting the meat is seared over quickly in a hot kettle and then cooked slowly with a very little water.

Braising. — Braising is similar to pot-roasting. The meat is cooked in the oven in a tightly covered pan with a small amount of water. It is best to sear the surface of the meat first. Vegetables are usually added for flavor.

Stewing. — In stewing the meat is simmered in a relatively large amount of water. Browning the meat for stews before cooking adds color and flavor.
Tough meats can be made somewhat more tender by pounding with the back of a knife or some other blunt tool so as to break the fibre, by rubbing the surface with an acid or by cooking in slightly acidulated water.

BEEF

Facts to Remember about Beef

Good beef is firm and fine-grained in texture. The surface of a freshly cut piece should be bright red in color. Even when it has been cut for some time it should be a clear red, though darker. The fat is firm, with a clear yellowish tinge.

In purchasing beef the amount of bone and cartilage in proportion to the meat should be considered. One cut may be a few cents lower in price than another but the amount of waste may make the real cost higher.

It should be remembered that beef comes from a large animal and it is not always possible to purchase a small piece advantageously.

Many of the beef organs can be utilized to good advantage and should not be overlooked in menu making. They offer variety and are relatively inexpensive.

ROAST BEEF

Put meat in a roasting pan, dredge with flour, and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Put into a very hot oven (500°) to sear the surface quickly. As soon as the roast is browned reduce the heat to moderate (350°). For rare beef allow fifteen minutes to the pound, counting the time after the meat is seared. For a well-done roast allow twenty minutes to the pound. If an uncovered roaster is used baste the meat frequently with the liquid in the pan.

To make gravy, remove the meat from the pan and pour off the superfluous fat, leaving about two tablespoonfuls for each cup of gravy to be made. Add one and one-half to two tablespoons flour for each cup, and blend thoroughly. Add the desired amount of water gradually, and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Season with salt and pepper. For a six pound roast make three cups of gravy.

POT ROAST OF BEEF

Wipe the meat with a cloth. Heat kettle or large frying-pan, put in meat and sear entire surface. Rub with salt and pepper. Add a cup of water, cover, and keep just below boiling point. Do not let kettle get dry, but keep only a little water in it. Cook until meat is tender,—about four hours. Thicken liquid for gravy by adding flour mixed to a paste with cold water. Use one and one-half to two tablespoons flour to each cup of liquid.

VEAL

Facts to Remember

Veal is the meat from a young calf. It is at its best when the animal is from six weeks to three months old. "Bob veal," meat from a calf younger than six weeks, is unfit for food.

Good veal is pink in color and contains a small proportion of white fat. Bob veal may be distinguished from the meat of an older animal by its lack of color.

The keeping quality of veal is poor. The meat should be used soon after it is dressed.

Veal should always be thoroughly cooked. Long cooking at a low temperature is best to soften the connective tissue and make the meat tender and palatable. As with other meats the surface should first be seared to prevent the escape of juices.

Fat should be added during the cooking to supply the deficiency in the composition of the meat. Salt pork and butter give the best flavor.

Veal is bland in flavor and should be served with a well-seasoned sauce or cooked with a stuffing.

The tissues of veal contain a large proportion of gelatine which makes the meat excellent for soup stock. White stock for which many recipes call is made from veal.

The edible organs of the calf are more tender and more delicate in flavor than those of any other animal.

LAMB AND MUTTON

Facts to Remember about Lamb

Lamb is the flesh of sheep under a year old. Above that age it is called mutton. Spring lamb is six weeks to three months old. It comes into the market in March to July. The best mutton is cut from sheep about three years old. Under that age it lacks flavor and is likely to be tough. Lamb may be judged by the leg joint. This joint is jagged in the young animal but becomes smooth and round in mutton.

Lamb should be of fine, firm fiber, light pink in color. The bones are pink or slightly streaked with red. It contains only a small amount of fat.

Mutton is deeper red in color and the bones are white. It contains a considerable amount of fat which should be firm, white and flaky.

A leg of lamb makes the best roast. It is relatively high in price but except for the single bone is practically all solid meat. The forequarter is often used for stews and soup but it also makes a good roast. It is most satisfactory for this purpose if boned and rolled.

Rib chops are cut from the forequarter, loin chops from the hind quarter. The edible portion is greater in the latter but the price is higher.

Rib chops in which the bone has been scraped clean nearly to the lean meat are called French chops.

A crown roast of lamb consists of pieces of loin from each side, each containing the same number of ribs. They are carefully trimmed and fastened together in the form of a circle.

A saddle of mutton consists of the two sides of the loin cut off before the backbone is split.

LAMB BROCHETTES

Have lamb from the forequarter cut into inch cubes. String these on metal skewers, alternating the lamb with narrower pieces of salt pork. Broil and serve as chops on the skewers.

LAMB IN CASSEROLE

2 to 3 pounds lamb from forequarter (weighed without bone) 2 tablespoons parsley (finely chopped)

If canned beans are used, add fifteen minutes before serving. Put onions, tomatoes, pepper, salt, and lamb broth in casserole with lamb. Cook until tender in moderate oven. Remove meat and vegetables to centre of platter. Thicken liquid for sauce with flour stirred to a paste with cold water. Make

Cover with oil and vinegar mixed together in the proportion of three tablespoons of oil to one of vinegar. Season a small quantity of fine white bread crumbs with celery salt and pepper, and mix them with chopped onion and minced parsley. Time in cooking, 3 minutes each. Temperature of fat, 365°.
POR

Facts to Remember about Pork

When pork is in proper condition the skin and fat are white and clear, except the kidney or leaf lard which is slightly pinkish in hue. The flesh is composed of fine-grained tissues and is pink in color.

The thicker the skin of pork the older the animal from which it was cut.

Pork contains a larger proportion of fat than any other meat. Consequently its food value is higher and special care should be taken in selecting other foods to combine with it.

Pork should always be thoroughly cooked. It is not only distasteful but even dangerous to health when underdone.

Ham that is very salt should be freshened before cooking. A slice is freshened by being covered with cold water and brought slowly to the simmering point. A whole ham should stand in cold water over night or at least for several hours.

ROAST PIG

Scrape and wash the pig. Rub dry with a fresh cloth and dust the inside with salt and pepper. Stuff, and sew up the incision. Fasten the feet together. Before putting in the roasting pan, place a wedge in the mouth to keep it open to receive an apple, orange, or lemon as garnish when served. Use a rack of wood or metal in the roasting pan to lift the meat out of the dripping juices during the cooking process. Put the pig in feet upwards. Baste often unless you use a covered roaster. Slash the skin around the neck before putting the pig on the platter, so that the moisture may evaporate and the skin keep its crispness. Allow about twenty minutes per pound and use an oven temperature of 450° reducing toward the end of the cooking period.

PIE AND PASTRY

Few desserts are more popular than pies and pastries, few require a smaller number of ingredients; but skill in handling is as essential here as it is anywhere in the whole range of cookery. It was experience, more than anything else, that produced the pies mother used to make.

The chief point to remember in making pastry is to use a light touch in all the processes. Work in the shortening with the tips of the fingers only, or cut it in with knives. Mix in the water thoroughly, but do not work the paste any more than is necessary. Do not knead it with the hands. Use the rolling pin lightly.

Use the smallest possible amount of water. Too much water is one of the commonest causes of tough pastry.

When baking an unfilled crust prick it with a fork so that it will not puff up in blisters with the heat of the oven.

Pastry without filling should be baked in a hot oven (400°–450°).

When the filling of a pie requires a lower temperature than the crust, the baking problem is complicated. In this case it is best to put the pie into a hot oven to start the cooking of the pastry, and then, before the filling has become thoroughly heated, reduce the temperature.

To prevent the under crusts of pies from being soggy, brush them with white of egg if filling is to be cooked in them. If the crusts are baked separately, cool them before putting in the filling.

To keep the juice of a berry pie from boiling out, insert a funnel of stiff paper through a hole in the upper crust.

ALMOND PASTRY

1 1/2 cups pastry flour 1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons ground almonds 1/2 cup shortening
3 tablespoons sugar 1 egg

Water

Mix dry ingredients and rub in shortening. Add beaten egg and enough water to hold paste together. Roll and bake in a hot oven. Almond pastry may be used for custard pies, lemon pies, fresh or dried fruit pies, or for tarts to be filled with jelly, marmalade, fruit, or whipped cream mixtures.
CHOUX PASTRY

\begin{align*}
\frac{1}{2} \text{ cup butter} & \quad \text{Pinch salt} \\
1 \text{ cup boiling water} & \quad 3 \text{ eggs} \\
1 \text{ cup flour} & \\
\end{align*}

Put butter and water in a saucepan and bring to the boiling point. Add flour and salt, and stir vigorously until the mixture makes a ball that comes away from the sides of the pan. Remove from fire and add unbeaten eggs one at a time, beating each one in thoroughly before adding the next. Form in the desired shape on a greased baking sheet. For éclairs squeeze the batter through a pastry bag. Shape cream puffs with a spoon, making them as nearly round as possible with the batter slightly heaped in the middle.

The secret of success in making choux pastry really lies in the baking process. Two points must be borne in mind, a moderate oven and plenty of time. As in any mixture where eggs act as the only leavening agent, special care in the matter of temperature is necessary. Too high a temperature ruins the texture and too low a temperature makes them fail to rise.

Time in oven, 45 minutes. Temperature, 325°. Servings, 10.

CORNSTARCH PASTRY

\begin{align*}
\frac{3}{4} \text{ cup cornstarch} & \quad 1 \text{ teaspoon baking powder} \\
1\frac{1}{4} \text{ cups flour} & \quad 6 \text{ tablespoons shortening} \\
1 \text{ tablespoon sugar} & \quad 1 \text{ egg yolk} \\
1\frac{1}{2} \text{ teaspoons salt} & \quad \text{Water} \\
\end{align*}

Mix and sift all the dry ingredients. Rub in shortening with a fork, or finger tips, and add beaten egg yolk. Add enough water to hold paste together and roll out.

FLAKY PASTRY NO. 1

\begin{align*}
1\frac{1}{2} \text{ cups flour} & \quad 6 \text{ tablespoons shortening} \\
1 \text{ teaspoon salt} & \quad \text{Water} \\
\end{align*}
Sift flour and salt. Mix in shortening with fork, or cut with two knives, leaving it in small lumps. These lumps roll out to make layers, or flakes. Roll lightly.

FLAKY PASTRY NO. 2

Mix as above, reserving one and one-half tablespoons of shortening. Roll out, spread with half the shortening, roll up like a jelly roll, and roll out. Spread with remaining shortening, roll out again.

FLAKY PASTRY NO. 3

Mix flour, salt and shortening as above. The amount of shortening may be cut down. Before adding the water take out one-half of the dry shortening and flour mixture. Add water to the remainder until it just cleans out the bowl. Roll out in circular form and place one-third of the dry part across the centre of the dough, and fold over from each side to make three layers. Turn half way round, roll out, and repeat twice, until all of the dry mixture is used.

HOT WATER PASTRY

PLAIN PASTRY

1 cup flour ¾ cup shortening
¼ teaspoon salt Water

Sift flour with the salt. Work in shortening until the mixture is like coarse meal. Add water gradually until just enough is used to hold the dough together. It must not be at all soft. Turn on to a board, pat, and roll out.
PUFF PASTRY

1 pound butter 1 pound flour

Wash butter, pat and fold until no water flies. Reserve two tablespoons of butter; shape remainder into a circular piece one-half inch thick. Work the two tablespoons of butter into the flour with the tips of the fingers. Moisten the dough with water which has been chilled in a bowl of cracked ice. Turn on to a floured board and knead one minute. Cover with a towel and let stand five minutes. Roll paste into a rectangle one-fourth inch thick. Place butter on centre of lower half and cover with other half of paste. Pinch edges together. Fold right side of paste over enclosed butter, the left side under enclosed butter. Cover and let stand five minutes. Roll one-inch thick on a floured board. Fold ends toward centre, making three layers. Cover and let stand five minutes. Repeat the process from "roll one-inch thick, etc." twice. Chill thoroughly. Roll out and bake in a hot oven. Time in oven, 25 minutes. Temperature, 400°.

POULTRY

Facts to Remember about Poultry

Fresh poultry should be firm, of yellowish tinge, with a fair amount of fat under the skin. A flabby, bluish look denotes cold storage poultry.

A chicken has smooth soft feet, and smooth tender skin with pin feathers but few hairs. The end of the breast bone is flexible and the flesh is lean.

In fowls, the feet are hard and scaly, and the skin thick and tough with long hairs instead of pin feathers. The cartilage at the end of the breast bone has hardened so that it is no longer flexible. A fowl has a larger proportion of fat than a chicken.

In preparing a chicken for cooking the first step is to singe it to remove the hairs. Do this by holding it by the neck and feet and revolving it over a gas flame or a blazing paper. Take care not to scorch the skin. Pin feathers are removed with a small knife or tweezers. The oil sac above the tail should be cut out.

If the chicken has not been dressed at the market the next step is to draw it. First cut a slit lengthwise in the skin of the neck at the front, insert the fingers and draw out the crop, which lies just under the skin close to the breast, and with it the windpipe. Next make an incision just below the breast bone large enough to admit the hand. Work around the organs, loosening them from the body. Slip the fingers around the whole mass near the neck and pull it gently out. The crop and wind pipe may be removed in this way instead of through the neck. Be careful to remove the bits of lung and liver that cling between the ribs. Rinse the cavity with cold water.

If the tendons in the legs are removed the meat will be more tender. Cut a slit just above the foot and the tendons will be visible. Pull them downwards with a steady motion until they loosen at the second joint and come out.

To cut up a chicken, first cut through the skin between the body and leg, close to the body. Bend back the leg to break the ligaments, cut through the flesh and separate at the joint. Divide the leg into two sections by cutting through the flesh and separating at the joint. Cut through the skin and flesh around the upper wing joint and disjoint the wing from the body. Cut off the tip of the wing. In the same way remove the leg and wing from the other side. Separate the breast from the back by cutting through the skin two inches below the breast bone and running the knife along the line of the lower ribs until it strikes the back bone. Then break the bone at the joint and pull the two pieces apart. Loosen the skin around the neck with the finger, break the neck back and remove it.

In stuffing a chicken, fill the crop region with the dressing and tie the end of the skin over the neck. Then fill the body region and sew up the opening, or fasten it by sticking toothpicks through the skin on either side and lacing twine around the ends. Allowance should be made for the swelling of the dressing as it cooks. Truss the wings and legs close to the body by tying with twine or fastening with two long skewers run through the body of the bird, one just beneath the legs, the other through the wings and breast. Tie the ends of the legs together and fasten down to the tail.

Turkey, duck and goose are prepared similarly to chicken. They are usually cooked by roasting.

Roasting.—In roasting poultry the larger the bird the lower should be the temperature. The skin protects against loss of juices so that it is not necessary to sear the surface with intense heat as it is in the case of meats. The temperature should be sufficiently high, however, to brown the skin during the first part of the cooking.

Keep a little water in the pan while the bird is roasting. Baste frequently unless a self-basting roaster is used.

Most poultry is improved by the addition of fat, preferably butter or salt pork.

Frying.—For frying, young chickens are used. Clean them and cut in convenient pieces for serving. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Brown on both sides in salt pork fat, bacon fat or butter. Then cover and cook slowly until the meat is tender. Older chickens may be used for frying if they are first parboiled.

½ cup flour
2 teaspoons salt, pepper
½ cup bread crumbs
¼ cup drippings
Stock from bones

Have chickens split through the backbone when cleaned. Remove skin and cut into pieces for serving. To the neck, giblets, ends of wings and legs, and bony framework that has little meat add water and cook for stock. Season the stock thus obtained and use for basting. Grease the pan well, sprinkle with half the flour and lay in the pieces of pared parsnip. Next lay in the pieces of chicken, having a pan large enough so that there will be only two layers. Mix salt, pepper, remaining flour, bread crumbs, and drippings together and sprinkle thickly over chicken. Put into a very hot oven for fifteen to twenty-five minutes, then finish cooking at a moderate temperature. When half cooked baste with two cups of chicken stock. More stock may be added later if necessary. When ready to serve lay pieces of chicken on a platter and surround with parsnips. Serve gravy separately. Time in oven, 25 minutes at 450°, and until tender at 325°. Servings, 8.

BROILED CHICKEN

Have four two and one-half pound broilers dressed and split for broiling. Place them in a well-greased pan, skin side down, sprinkle with salt and pepper and place small pieces of butter over them. Put into a hot oven and bake one-half hour or more. Remove to a well-greased broiler and broil over a clear fire to finish. When done, place on a platter, brush over with Maître d’Hôtel butter and serve. A garnish of cress adds to the attractiveness of the dish.
Time in oven, 30 minutes. Temperature, 450°. Servings, 8.

SALADS

Facts to Remember in Preparing Salads

The important mineral salts and vitamins and the refreshing acids of fruit and vegetables which the body needs daily can be supplied in no better way than in the appetizing and attractive form of salads.

Salads may be broadly classed in two groups—salads which are accompaniments to the meat course or form a course in a heavy meal, and those which serve as the main part of a meal.

Salads offer many interesting possibilities for the utilization of left-overs. Several ingredients may be combined successfully, but care should be taken that the flavors and textures are of a sort that blend well. A mixture of too many different materials should be avoided.

A garnish of some succulent green plant like lettuce, watercress, romaine or endive is essential to almost every salad to make it attractive to the eye, as well as complete in food value.

The real secret of success with salads is in the careful preparation of materials. Lettuce or other greens should be picked over carefully and washed in cold water. A single faded leaf, insect ravage or speck of dirt will spoil the appearance of the whole salad. If the vegetables are at all wilted they should be left in cold water to become crisp, then patted dry with a food cloth or twirled in a cheesecloth bag until the drops of water have been forced out. Lettuce which is not to be used immediately should be left near the ice.

Vegetables, fruit or meat should be cut into uniform pieces which are neither so large that they must be broken before they are eaten nor so small that they form a paste when the dressing is added.

The ingredients and the garnish should be kept cold and dry until it is time to mix the salad. Salads should be mixed lightly, never pressed down or stirred.

A salad containing fruit or fresh vegetables should never be mixed until just before serving or it will be wilted and the dressing watery.

When salad ingredients are marinated in vinegar or French dressing for additional flavor they should not be allowed to stand too long and the superfluous liquid should be carefully drained off before the dressing is added.

In general only simple leaf salads with plain dressing should be served with hot meats. The more fatty the meat, the more acid should be the salad. Sweet salads or heavy salads made of meat or fish should never be served as an accompaniment, but as a separate course.
A salad covered with mayonnaise is out of place when a heavy meat or rich dish is previously served. Plain thin bread and butter sandwiches or simple crackers may be served with any salad. Cheese, especially cream cheese, is a tasty accompaniment to light salads.

SALAD DRESSINGS

Facts to Remember about Salad Dressings

There are three types of salad dressing in common use—French, mayonnaise and boiled. Most of the others are simply variants of these foundations.

French dressing is simply a mixture of oil, acid and seasonings thoroughly blended by beating.

Mayonnaise is another uncooked dressing. It contains the same ingredients as French dressing and, in addition, egg to give it body. Mayonnaise is a rich dressing and should be used sparingly.

Difficulty frequently arises in making mayonnaise, because the ingredients tend to separate instead of blending into a smooth thick dressing. If this curdling does occur, there are various ways of remedying the condition. The simplest is to take a very little cold water (not more than half a teaspoonful) and add to it the mixture drop by drop, beating vigorously. A fork is effective for beating when working with a small quantity like this. A small amount of egg white may be used in the same way in place of the water, or the dressing may be made over by starting with another egg yolk and adding the original mixture to it very gradually.

The so-called boiled dressings are not actually boiled, but cooked below the boiling point like a soft custard. They consist of a liquid, usually milk, thickened with egg or starch or a combination of both and seasoned highly. The secret of making a cooked dressing without having it curdle lies in having the acid and the foundation mixture both hot or both cold when they are mixed. Like a custard, a boiled dressing made with egg must not be cooked too long nor at too high a temperature. Vigorous beating will sometimes make a curdled boiled dressing smooth again.

For delicate salads, lemon juice is often preferred in place of vinegar in the dressing. To mayonnaise or boiled dressing an equal quantity of whipped cream may be added.

ARCADY DRESSING

2 cups milk
2 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 egg yolks
1/4 cup sugar

1 1/2 teaspoons salt
3/4 teaspoon mustard
1/4 cup vinegar
3 tablespoons salad oil

Heat the milk in the top of the double boiler. Add the cornstarch and cook twenty minutes. Pour mixture slowly over beaten egg yolks, which have been mixed with the sugar, salt, and mustard. Cook as you would custard. Remove from the fire when it is thick enough to coat the spoon. Beat in the vinegar and oil with egg-beater.

ARCOLA DRESSING

Mix ingredients in order given and stir thoroughly.

MAYONNAISE (Acidulated Gelatine)

1 teaspoon gelatine 2 egg yolks
1 teaspoon mustard 2 cups salad oil
1 teaspoon salt 1 lemon (juice)
Cayenne
Soften gelatine in one tablespoon cold water, and dissolve over boiling water. Mix seasonings with beaten egg yolks, and add dissolved gelatine. Add oil gradually, beating constantly. As mixture thickens thin with lemon juice.

MAYONNAISE NO. 1

- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon powdered sugar
- ¼ teaspoon mustard
- ¼ teaspoon paprika
- 1 egg yolk
- 2 tablespoons vinegar or lemon juice
- 1 cup salad oil

Mix dry ingredients, add egg yolk and blend thoroughly. Add one teaspoon of the vinegar. Add oil very slowly, beating all the time. After one-quarter cup of oil has been used, the rest may be added more rapidly. Thin with the vinegar, or lemon as necessary.

Seasonings may be added to suit the taste.

Mix with an equal quantity of stiffly whipped cream and serve with fruit salad.

SANDWICHES

The variety that is possible in sandwiches is almost unlimited, but in general they may be divided into three classes—lunch box or picnic sandwiches, whole-meal sandwiches and afternoon tea sandwiches.

Sandwiches usually form an important part of the lunch box or picnic meal. Fillings should be selected which give adequate food value and sufficient variety to appeal to the appetite. The keeping quality is also a consideration. Vegetables that wilt quickly, and semi-liquid mixtures that soak into the bread should be avoided.

A whole-meal sandwich should be sufficiently hearty to make a whole course at luncheon or supper. Salad sandwiches, meat sandwiches served with hot gravy, and club sandwiches fall into this class. Sandwiches made from toast instead of plain bread are often used.

For the afternoon tea sandwich, slices of bread with the crust removed and of wafer-like thinness are essential. Fancy cutters have their place here. The open sandwich, a single slice of bread spread with filling and attractively garnished, may be used for variety.

The canapé is really an open sandwich served as the first course at dinner. Highly seasoned fillings are used and the bread is usually sautéed in butter or toasted.

Yeast bread for sandwich making should be at least twenty-four hours old. Quick bread may be used when it is less than twenty-four hours old if it is quite cold and is firm in texture.

The bread should always be cut in even slices never more than a quarter of an inch thick. If the loaves are of uniform shape, and if the crust is not hard nor too dark in color, it is not necessary to remove the crusts from sandwiches except for special occasions.

The butter should be creamed until very soft, but it never should be melted. The slices of bread should be buttered in the order in which they are cut and kept in pairs so that they will fit together evenly. They should be buttered to the very edges.

Filling should be used generously and spread evenly. The ingredients should be chopped fine enough to make a smooth filling. Fillings should be spread to cover the bread completely. Sliced meats and vegetables should be trimmed to correspond to the shape of the sandwich.

Sandwiches which are to be kept any length of time should be wrapped in a cloth wrung very dry from cold water. For the lunch box, sandwiches should be wrapped in waxed paper. It is best to keep sandwiches with different fillings separate from one another.

SOUPS

Facts to Remember about Soups

Whether soup is used in the menu as an appetizer or for its food value depends upon its nature. Clear soups like bouillon, consommé and plain meat broth have very little fuel value in themselves but they start the flow of gastric juices and help to create an appetite. Thick cream soups and purées are sufficiently nourishing to make up a substantial part of the meal.

Soup affords the housekeeper an excellent opportunity for utilizing left-overs.

Careful preparation and service is particularly important with soup. Lukewarm, greasy or poorly seasoned soup is one of the most unappetizing dishes that can be served.

Any highly seasoned, clear stock may be made into a jellied soup that appeals particularly to the appetite on a hot day. Use a little less than a tablespoon of gelatine, softened in cold water, to each pint of liquid. Jellied soup should be a little less solid than a gelatine dessert.

Fruit soups are less known to Americans, and to the conservative palate, unaccustomed to them, probably make small appeal. As a variety in the menu they recommend themselves for trial to the discriminating cook.

BLANKET RECIPE FOR FISH OR MEAT CREAM SOUPS

1 quart milk, or 2 cups milk and 2 cups white soup stock
1 cup minced, canned salmon, tuna fish, flaked, canned fish or left-over whitefish of any kind, or
1 cup finely minced veal or chicken
1/2 teaspoon onion juice
1/2 teaspoon pepper
Salt to taste
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons minced parsley

Scald the milk with fish or scald stock and milk combined, with meat. Add seasonings, and in the meantime, rub together butter and flour. Add the scalded mixture gradually to this, return the whole to a double boiler, and cook until thickened — about twenty minutes. Then add parsley. A few left-over canned peas, a little minced, cooked carrot, or some finely shredded canned string beans, or diced, cooked celery may be added if on hand. If desired, the flour may be omitted, the butter being beaten into the soup, and one-half cup of cooked brown or white rice, or farina, may be combined with a little of the soup, then stirred in to thicken.

BLANKET RECIPE FOR SOUPS OF LEGUMES

1½ cups split peas, cow peas, any kind of beans, except soy beans, or lentils
2 quarts cold water
⅛ teaspoon soda
1 small onion, minced
2 tablespoons dried or ½ cup fresh celery leaves (if desired)

Salt and pepper to taste
1 pint milk
3 tablespoons butter, or any kind meat drippings
3 tablespoons flour

Soak the vegetables overnight in water to cover. Drain, rinse, add to the cold water with the soda, onion, celery, and sugar. Cook slowly until perfectly tender, replenishing the water to keep the amount of the liquid always about two quarts. Season to taste with salt and pepper, then rub through a sieve and add the milk. Rub together the butter and flour. Add a little of the hot mixture to this, and return to the whole amount, let boil two or three minutes, and serve. If desired, a little salt pork may be diced and cooked in the soup, or the liquid from ham, if not too salt, or corned beef, may be used instead of the cold water.

BLANKET RECIPE FOR VEGETABLE CREAM SOUPS

1½ cups vegetable pulp (made of any cooked vegetable)
2 cups cold water
⅛ teaspoon onion juice
1 teaspoon salt

⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons butter

2½ cups milk constantly, and cook until thickened. Then combine it with the vegetable pulp and liquid, which may or may not be pressed through a sieve.

VEGETABLES

Facts to Remember about Vegetable Cookery

Vegetables provide some fuel in the shape of sugar and starch and have in addition valuable mineral content, necessary vitamins, and enough indigestible residue to provide roughage.

All vegetables should be carefully washed before cooking. A small brush is convenient for cleaning the root vegetables.

Vegetables that grow in the form of heads, like cabbage, cauliflower and Brussels sprouts, should be allowed to stand half an hour in salt water to draw out any insects that may be lodged in them.

Wilted vegetables may be made fresh and crisp by placing them for a short time in cold water.

Much of the mineral matter in vegetables lies near the skin. For this reason, as thin a paring as possible should be removed. It is often practical to cook vegetables in their skins.

Any vegetable may be cooked by boiling. By this method some of the flavor and nutritive material is drawn out and dissolved in the water. To preserve it, a small quantity of water should be used so that it can be served with the vegetable, or the water should be utilized in soups or sauces. In the case of a strong flavored vegetable, a large amount of water may be used because a more delicate flavor is desirable.

Steaming is also suitable for all vegetables and insures against loss of flavor and nutritive value.

Many vegetables, particularly the starchy ones, develop delicious flavor by baking. By this method, too, the nutritive value is retained.

Some vegetables such as egg-plant, summer squash and parsnips are cooked successfully by frying or sautéing. This method adds fat and improves flavor.

Salt tends to harden the fiber and to draw out the flavor. It is therefore best to add salt to vegetables near the end of the cooking period.

Any record of cooking time is only a general guide. The time varies according to the age and quality of the vegetable.

Over-cooking often develops unpleasant flavors in vegetables and gives them an unattractive color.
